I will be back in the office today after a week away. Sorry I missed the snow day, but there was plenty of snow where I was.

For Valentine's Day, my sweet husband drove to Atlanta and rescued me after I was stranded amidst the post-blizzard airline meltdown. That's better than candy.

Welcome back.

How about some Valentine's candy for us all: where were you and what were you doing?

If you do not want to say anything, silence accomplishes that. You do not need this.
