

Martha, Martha, Give Us the News

September 29

Heartwalk 2008

September 29, 2008 5:27 AM | Permalink

The last post – yet another mostly social event – earned another low M.O.B. Index score of 2. Perhaps in the future these evaluations may have to be artificially altered to reflect the weeks of no news at all: is hot air and sunshine better than nothing at all? If Martha spoke in the woods, would anyone know it?

We understand the burdens you are under: two football games in a row that you really would not want to post photos of as a reminder (although you did look splendid at the game). Why not some tailgating shots? Maybe that would be in bad form after the alcohol problems on frat row. Perhaps Rice will be beatable this year; if not, there always is the chance for some really cool candid shots of you and yours during Halloween festivities. We are doing yoga, chanting, and warming our crystals trying to calm ourselves from all of our anticipation.